EDUCATA BROADENS SCOPE OF ONLINE CONTINUING EDUCATION SERVICES

New offerings include high quality courses for Occupational Therapists as well as Speech Language Pathologists

CALABASAS, CA. March 28, 2017 —After years leading the field of physical therapy continuing education, EDUCATA has rolled out the same high-standard online CE courses in the areas of occupational therapy and speech language pathology, thereby offering quality online CEs for the three main disciplines of rehabilitation services.

“We have enjoyed great growth and customer loyalty among PTs”, said Dr. Marilyn Pink, EDUCATA’s CEO. “As we expanded, institutional clients with a wide range of rehab services have asked us for the same high-quality continuing education content for other rehabilitation disciplines. We are very excited to announce that a significant number of new courses have been added to EDUCATA’s online courseware library and been approved nationally for CE credits for OTs and SLPs.”

The new courses have met and passed the stringent requirements set by their respective accreditation agencies (the American Occupational Therapy Association -- AOTA and the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, ASHA). Taught by leading experts in their field, courses cover specific aspects, issues and techniques in a wide range of subjects.

Feedback from the pilot rollout of the new courses has been enthusiastic. “This is a whole new experience for me and I am pleased to have taken the course,” noted Lynn G, OT, after completing a shoulder dissection study. Of the new Orthotics course, Lori F, OT, said: “Excellent course with great content! I felt that the instructors covered a wide variety of splints with explanation of their thought process for splint type and material choice. Learned some new techniques that I'm anxious to try in the clinic!”

EDUCATA plans to continue to expand services and provide both paid-for and free educational contents in all areas of rehabilitation with many new courses currently in the pipeline.
